DETAILED ACTION

Previous Rejections

Applicants' arguments, filed 8 November 2010, have been fully considered. Rejections and/or objections not reiterated from previous office actions are hereby withdrawn. The following rejections and/or objections are either reiterated or newly applied. They constitute the complete set presently being applied to the instant application.

The Examiner notes that the 103(c) statement that was previously made with regards to the Lyu et al. reference (US Patent Application Publication 2004/0047911) has been withdrawn, with the Applicant noting that it is not entirely clear that the statement was valid in view of the current facts. This previously presented statement was the reason the rejections under 35 USC 103 of the first non-final rejection (mailed 19 November 2009) were withdrawn. In view of the withdrawal of the 103(c) statement, the Lyu et al. reference is now considered to be prior art, and rejections based on this reference are considered proper. However, in the interest of compact prosecution, rejections over Lyu et al. are not being presented, as this would require a new ground of rejection (the claims being amended when the now withdrawn 103(c) statement was originally presented), and thus this action would necessarily be non-final. In order to expedite and close prosecution, the rejections made in the last action are maintained, and no new rejections over Lyu et al. are being presented.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.

Claims 1-13 and 15-21 stand rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Benz et al. (US Patent Application Publication 2003/0162905) in view of Shalaby et al. (US Patent Application Publication 2003/0199964) and Van Krevelen (“Properties of Polymers,” 1990, Elsevier, 3rd Edition, Chapter 7, pages 189-225). The Applicant argues that the rejection is not proper. The Applicant states that the Examiner made merely conclusionary statements without providing a rationale, and that the combination is based on the mere fact that each reference teaches some element of the invention. The Applicant also states that the claims recite a limitation to the relative solubility parameters, and there is no teaching or suggestion of this element.

The Examiner acknowledges the presented arguments, but does not consider them persuasive. The rejection did not merely present the elements as taught and conclude the invention was obvious without providing a rationale. A reason was provided for using the vinyl acetate block, namely that Benz taught that this block would allow for adhesion of a polymeric coating to the stent, and Shalaby et al. teaches that it is desirable for the coating to adhere to the stent. And the reason to combine the polymeric materials was based on case law and as discussed in MPEP 2144.06), which was also cited to support the reasoning for the modification.

As for the solubility parameters, initially, the Examiner notes that the polymeric materials disclosed by Benz and Shalaby et al. inherently possess solubility parameter values, and thus inherently meet the claimed limitation. There is no requirement that inherent features be recognized by the references for a rejection to be proper. See MPEP 2112(II). Additionally, the rejection was based in part on the Van Krevelen reference, which taught the desirability of keeping the solubility parameters of polymeric materials similar in order to prepare a miscible blend.

Claims 14 and 22-24 stand rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Benz et al. (US Patent Application Publication 2003/0162905), Shalaby et al. (US Patent Application Publication 2003/0199964), and Van Krevelen ("Properties of Polymers," 1990, Elsevier, 3rd Edition, Chapter 7, pages 189-225), as applied to claim 13 above, and further in view of Sirhan et al. (US Patent Application Publication 2002/0082677). The Applicant presented no arguments specifically directed to this rejection, and for the reasons discussed above, the arguments against the rejection of claim 13 are not considered persuasive.

Conclusion

No claims are allowed.

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
